TROMPER-VAN DRIEL ARMS

The Ancestral Armorial Bearings

ALPHONSO TRUMPSBOUR CLEARWATER

The Tromper-Van Driel Arms which frequently are found together in Holland, are reproduced in this volume with descriptions of the Armorial bearing in Dutch, French and English. Most of the Trompers in Holland were merchants and ship owners, and the flags of their vessels are found in the superb collection of the flags of the merchantmen of Rotterdam, which are suspended from the vaulted ceiling of the great Chamber of Commerce in that city. The founder of the family in America was Jacob Tromper, born at Rotterdam in 1626, came to America in 1652, and became the owner of a large tract of land in what is now the town of Shawangunk, Ulster County, and which embraced some four thousand acres between the Shawangunk mountains and the Wallkill river. His descendants intermarried with the Klaarwater (Clearwater) family at an early period, and these intermarriages continued from time to time until the middle of the nineteenth century. Many members of the Tromper family are buried in the churchyard of the beautiful old Dutch church at Bruynswick at the base of the Shawangunk mountains, made famous by the painting of E. L. Henry of Charleston, South Carolina, and in the churchyard of the great brick church at Montgomery, in Orange County, and in that of the historic First Dutch Church of Kingston. The family has been prominent in Ulster County for the last two centuries, of which Judge Alphonso Trompsbour Clearwater, President of The Holland Society, is a distinguished member.

THE EIGHTH INFORMAL MEETING

THE 1910 Smoker of The Holland Society came off with even greater success than usual, at the Hotel Astor, Broadway and Forty-fourth Street, on the evening of Tuesday, November 22, 1910. The Belvedere upon the roof of the hotel was called into requisition for the purpose, and it was the general opinion, though not unanimous, that this was a very excellent substitute for the grand ballroom, which could not be obtained for this particular occasion.

The notices of the Smoker were as follows:

“November 10, 1910.

“Dear Sir:

The Holland Society will meet informally at the Hotel Astor, Broadway and Forty-fourth Street, at half past eight o'clock, Tuesday evening, November twenty-second, 1910.

Each member has the privilege of inviting one guest, preferably someone who is eligible to membership.

A collation will be served shortly after ten o'clock and will be preceded by a short entertainment.

Kindly notify the Secretary, by means of the enclosed postal card, if you expect to attend, and if you will bring a guest, so that proper preparations may be made. Please give your home and office addresses on the card, stating stating to which you prefer notices to be sent. Nearly one half of the members failed to reply last year and the Secretary failed to get the information he desired.

Yours very truly,

HENRY L. BOGERT,

Secretary."

From the replies which were received, it appeared that 265 members expected to be present and had offered the hospitality of the Society to 205 guests. Those who replied, regretting their inability to be present (about 250), brought the number up to a little over 500, leaving the Secretary without answer from nearly one-half of the members. If the members realized how much more conveniently they could send word of their places of business and residences in answering these notices, and how much less likely Year Books and Souvenirs would go astray, they would not omit this slight effort to make the Secretary's records complete.

The management of the hotel made its usual and successful efforts to gratify the palates and satisfy the appetites of those who attended, serving the menu in excellent form.

Before the tables were set for this purpose, the Committee, ably assisted by Ex-President Hasbrouck, and under management of Chairman Evert Jansen Wendell, produced for their entertainment and applause a delightful programme. There were about 400 present in all and the enthusiasm and approval were so roundly expressed that a double quantity of punch was required in order to quench the resulting thirst. When all had taken their departure it was plain to the Committee that this had been the most successful Smoker of a successful line.

TWENTY-SIXTH ANNUAL DINNER

THE Twenty-sixth Annual Dinner of The Holland Society of New York, at the Waldorf Astoria, Thursday, January 19, 1911.

This dinner was attended by about three hundred members and guests and was a distinct and gratifying success. As usual, the gathering was in the Astor Gallery before the dinner, and members in general, with their guests, were first requested to take their places at the tables upon the floor of the dining room, after which the procession of guests of honor and speakers was brought in and, filing to the right, partly circled the grand ball room, to their places upon the dais. The procession was made up as follows:

President A. T. Clearwater escorted Governor John A. Dix.

E. Covert Hulst escorted R. T. Davies, Vice-President of the Pennsylvania Society.

De Witt Roosa escorted William Mitchell, one of the executive committee of the Huguenot Society.

William F. Wyckoff escorted Rollin M. Morgan, President of St. David's Society.

Hon. Tunis G. Bergen escorted John H. Burroughs, President of the Empire State Society Sons of the American Revolution.

Edward Van Winkle escorted Lloyd B. Sanderson, President of St. George's Society.

Gerard

Gerard Beekman escorted Walter L. Suydam, Vice-President of St. Nicholas Society.

Secretary Henry L. Bogert escorted Col. Eckford C. De Kay, Military Secretary to the Governor.

Hon. Frank Hasbrouck escorted Hon. Courtenay Walter Bennett, British Consul-General.

Henry S. Van Duzer, Chairman of the Banquet Committee, escorted F. Hopkinson Smith.

Com. W. J. Terhune escorted Com. Lewis S. Van Duzer, Commandant of the New York Navy Yard.

Hon. G. J. Garretson escorted Hon. John R. Planten, Consul-General of the Netherlands.

Treasurer Arthur H. Van Brunt escorted Frederick Dwight, Secretary of the Society of Colonial Wars.

James Yereance escorted George A. Morrison, Jr., Second Vice-President of St. Andrew's Society.

George G. De Witt escorted Warren Leslie, Secretary of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick.

S. D. Coykendall escorted Frederick S. Woodruff, Third Vice-President of the Sons of the Revolution.

Gilbert B. Savres escorted Elijah Woodward, Recorder of the Colonial Order of the Acorn.

As the procession reached the dais, President Clearwater and the Governor stood aside to allow the first nine of those above named to precede them to their places upon the right, after which they took their places, Governor Dix being upon the right of President Clearwater and upon his left being Com. Van Duzer. Hon. George McAneny, President of the Borough of Manhattan, came in soon after and took his place between Com. Van Duzer and Consul-General Planten. When all had seated themselves, the President called upon Rev. Albert A. Zabriskie to ask a blessing, which he did from his place at one of the neighboring tables, after which the photographer, who had arranged his paraphernalia, was permitted to take a flashlight photograph of the assembly. It was successful and showed excellently the progress of this illustrative art.

The menu was as will appear by the annexed copy, and was acceptably served and enthusiastically disposed of.

The

The souvenir was a combination of the seal of the Society and of the members' badge made up into the form of a bronze paper weight, a representation of which was shown upon the back of the menu.

After the coffee had been served, a few minutes' intermission for purposes of sociability was granted, then the President wrapped for order and gave his address of welcome.

ADDRESS

THE DINNER TICKET

ADDRESS OF WELCOME

BY A. T. CLEARWATER

It is a great pleasure, gentlemen, to know that the Society practically has reached the proposed constitutional limit of membership. (Applause.) We have substantially one thousand members and over four hundred of them and their guests are here. (Applause.)

It is not necessary I should speak of the lofty ideals of the organization. As was said by the President of the United States in his letter to me regretting his inability to be here tonight, The Holland Society stands for the cultivation of those forces which tend to make the American people one of the greatest nations of the earth. (Applause.) While we have a just pride of ancestry, we Dutchmen know that in America there is no claim to distinction except that which is predicated upon individual achievement. (Applause.) And thus it is that the man of Dutch descent, wherever you find him, always counts for more than he seems to be. (Applause.)

Two of the virtues of the Dutch are hospitality and catholicity, and thus it is that we include in the invitation to our dinners many of the patriotic societies of New York.

Every wide awake Dutchman tries to keep up with the thought of his day, and the President of the Society, in his desire to know what is going on, reads the essays of the sociologists and psychologists of the time. Among their latest contributions is a book which I recommend to you for three reasons: First, it is instructive; second, it was written by a distinguished man; and third, a reason that will commend itself to all Dutchmen, it is inexpensive. (Laughter and applause.)

Its title is "The Durable Satisfaction of Life." It was written by that pre-eminent Dutchman from Massachusetts, President Eliot, late of Harvard University. (Laughter and applause.) And speaking of the Durable Satisfaction of Life, he recounts this incident, the truth of which every Dutchman will appreciate. He says that out in New England an old lady who had occupied occupied a prominent position in society, and had reached an advanced age, was dying. She sent for what we would call the local domine, who said, "Mrs. Brown, as you review your long life, what of all the things you have seen and had, has given you the greatest satisfaction?" The old lady turned upon her pastor a face wreathed in that beatific smile which we attribute to those who are passing to a better world, and her eyes brightened as she said, "My victuals." (Laughter and applause.)

Now as I said, every Dutchman knows that she rang true to the end. (Laughter.)

Gentlemen, fill your glasses, I propose the health of the President of the United States.

(The toast was drunk standing.)

This toast was to have been responded to by Senator Taylor of Tennessee, one of the eloquent orators of the South. It seems that down in Tennessee they are having the same trouble we are having in New York. They are endeavoring to elect a Senator (laughter), and Senator Taylor sends this telegram to Judge Van Wyck:

"Asheville, January 19th. I regret that the senatorial deadlock in Tennessee renders it impossible for me to be with you tonight at the banquet. I hope that every banqueter around the spread will live forever. (Applause.) Please thank Mr. Van Duzer for me for his offered hospitality. Robert L. Taylor."

That is what I call Southern generosity, he wishes us immortality.

I propose as the next toast: The country of our ancestry and the Queen of Holland.

(The toast was drunk standing.)

We had expected Mr. Boissevain, the president of the Netherland Chamber of Commerce, but Holland will be represented by our friend and companion on many festive occasions, Mr. Planten, the Consul-General of the Netherlands. (Applause.)

ADDRESS

ADDRESS OF HON. JOHN R. PLANTEN

Ladies and Gentlemen: Before reading to you what I have penned, I would say that I am merely a substitute; I am not an original at all. Nevertheless, I am very glad to be with you, and I have learned to love your society with an affection which cannot be expressed in words, because I think the heartiest sympathy is generally felt perhaps better than being put in words in public. I have been asked, and it is my privilege (and not the first time), to respond to the toast of our Queen, the one beloved above all others, not only by the Holland people who claim her, and justly, as their own, but also by you people who are so largely gathered here, and who are ever so fondly attached to the land of our common ancestry and the great record which Holland has made in the history of the world. (Applause.)

I beg to tender you the assurance of my appreciation in being with you tonight at the Annual of this Society in unity of spirit to do honor jointly to the memory of our common forefathers who aided so largely in the founding of this nation. Leaving examples to us to keep alive the virtues they professed, and to transfer unto those who shall succeed us. Never to forget the noble works they accomplished in founding a nation that now stands foremost among the powers of the world. The founders of this cosmopolitan nation we claim came mainly from Holland; hence we have pride in our descent, and while we acknowledge the co-operation of all other nationalities in making this nation grand and powerful, yet we glory in the admitted truth that the founders of this Republic descended from the little land which has ever stood in the fore ranks of liberty, truth and equal justice to all alike. (Applause.)

They sowed choice seed of noble principles that have brought right reward in educating its people and securing freedom to worship God in accord with our faith and dictates of our hearts. Holland today, as it ever was, is foremost in all that is good and great; its record in the history of the world is a worthy example to the people thereof. She was a good fighter for freedom of thought, and foremost to war for liberty. Her commerce extends the world over. Her art is the envy of many. Her character for truth and statesmanship is well recognized. She rules her colonies with great wisdom. In finance she is foremost. In the ranks of nations she battles for peace.

Beyond so largely founding the nation of the United States, the Holland people wherever they have located have founded a community that becomes thrifty and develops most worthy citizens. These traits of character are of the best type, and they are strictly honest, industrious, truthful and economical.

The number of Dutch people in the United States is about 150,000 or 200,000. When the tide of emigration from Holland set for the United States about 1880, the colonies of Holland in Michigan, Keokuk, Iowa, and others were formed. Holland, Michigan, is a town of 10,000. Grand Rapids has 15,000. In Wisconsin and California there are numerous Holland settlements. Chicago has a large Holland colony. Pella, Iowa, founded in or about 1850, has many Hollanders. They have largely increased in numbers, and unless I be misinformed, all are thrifty. In the neighborhood of Paterson, as elsewhere in New Jersey, many Hollanders may be found. In Paterson alone there are eleven Holland Protestant churches, where the worshippers are worthy sons of worthy sires; they retain all the virtues of generations gone before. Inherited love for truth and justice are endowed with a noble spirit, making good, worthy citizens, whose way of living is an example that should be impressed upon all and faithfully followed.

I regret that while my subject is so full of worth, not an able speaker has been chosen to present it.

Let me again thank you for the privilege of being with you today, and let me thank you for your ever cordial sympathy for the land of my birth, the object of our mutual affection. (Applause.)

I tender to you all greetings from the Queen and people whom I have had the honor to represent during the time covering a life's span, with the assurance that your your filial love for old Holland is highly valued in the little country of dams and dykes. As a closing thought I would offer you these words which I wrote at the time of the birth of the princess and have been asked to read this evening:

We're filled with love and gladness the most sincere and true

That to our native land a princess has been born.
We do rejoice with grateful and most happy hearts
And in most merry mood we cheer and bless this day.

For to our land has come a token of salvation
Like that which came to Bethlehem one joyous Christmas morn.

Therefore the people praise with joy and glad acclaim

And with affection fond and love most true bid her "all hail."

Welcome with glad acclaim this Princess of the Nation,

Pledge her their love and earnest, deep regard,
Crown her the May Queen of their hearts;
Pray for her health from youth to age. Wish her Great life, long happiness, rich measure of content,
A reign of peace, to bless her and her nation.

(Applause.)

THE TOASTMASTER: Our State and its Governor.
(After three cheers had been given for the Governor, the toast was drunk standing.)

THE TOASTMASTER: It is a great pleasure to present the Governor of New York. (Applause and cheers.) A pleasure enhanced by the fact that the present Governor is a Dutchman. (Laughter and applause.) I suppose that every member of The Holland Society knows that Governor Dix is a descendant from that distinguished Hollander who spelt his name D-i-j-k-s, and who came here in 1660; the pleasure of presenting this Governor is the greater at this moment because he realizes that he is the Governor, and not the Legislature.
(Applause.)

(Applause.) Within the memory of men in this room, New York has had few Governors who more fully have possessed those virtues for which the Dutch are pre-eminent than this one. (Applause.)

Realizing that this is a Republican form of government, that by the fundamental law there are three great co-ordinate branches of government, the executive, the judicial and the legislative, despite enormous pressure he has maintained with extreme modesty, marked dignity and wonderful forbearance, but with Dutch tenacity, that principle upon which the fathers founded this commonwealth. (Applause.) And I present the head of our State as one who bears high honors with a simplicity characteristic of his race.

*ADDRESS OF THE HONORABLE JOHN A.
DIX, GOVERNOR OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK*

Mr. Toastmaster, Ladies and Members of The Holland Society, my next of kin: I come here tonight with a feeling of gratitude, with a feeling of affection in my heart for the Dutch people in this State. The telegram just read from Tennessee I appreciate, and I sympathize with Mr. Taylor (laughter), but having announced my attitude, I have a leave of absence. (Laughter.)

In looking over the history of this Society, I find that you have just passed the milestone of the first twenty-five years of your existence (applause), and I regret to say that as I came in your worthy President was just announcing that the list was complete. (Laughter.) As my ancestors had been in this country but fifteen years in 1675, which I believe is the age limit, they were only fifteen years old, not old enough to vote, and I lack six years of becoming a member of this Society. (Laughter.)

I find that the Dutch people have displayed a magnificent courage; they have battled with the sea and conquered it; they have utilized the force of the wind to aid in the development of their country. People who can undertake to conquer the sea and harness the wind are the class of people that have stamped this state and this nation with fortitude and with integrity. (Applause.) I think you will agree with me that the Hollander or the Dutchman displayed magnificent commercial ability when he so successfully purchased the Island of Manhattanas for $120.00, or 60 guilders. At that time there were only 200 people on this Island. The investment was a splendid one. (Laughter.) You journeyed up the river to the City of Albany. The City of Albany bears today, I think, as much of the characteristics of the Dutch people as any other city in this State or in this nation. We are still eating oley cocks there. (Laughter.) I hope they always will. And in line with that telegram that the people may live forever. (Laughter and applause.)

You have taken your place in the development of this country because you have developed your country so magnificently and so well. I think any visitor to Holland is at once impressed with the unanimity, with the co-operation of the people there, all working for Holland.

The Hollanders have spread out over this world, they have taken their place—I believe you elected an Emperor of Rome, although he reigned but nine years, and fell at the battle in Friesland—nevertheless it shows the courage, the integrity, of that race. Today you are instrumental in working out some of the problems in this State, and what surprises me is that with this large leaven of Dutch in this State we have not grappled with some of the resources here. From the teachings of the Fatherland, you should know how to grapple with and how to control those resources in this State. The sun is lifting from our ocean vapor which it carries to the hills of this State; it is condensed there into water. If that water were conserved and distributed scientifically to the villages along the valleys of the rivers, if it were harnessed for the purpose of turning the wheels of industry, the hum of industry would be in every hamlet; it would co-ordinate with the wonderful facilities of transportation that we have and are building. And I hope that as time goes on I might get a great deal of sympathy sympathy and co-operation from the very people who know how to do things in their own country, that they will work with me in this State, that we may control some of those resources which make for better citizenship, which make for the uplift of humanity, and for the generations yet unborn. (Applause.)

This State is making strides in the Department of Health. It is working out the problems to conserve humanity. We need your co-operation there. Already we are making inroads upon the ravages of the White Plague, we are working together to drive out and control that terrible malady which is undermining the health of this country. The state is contributing enormous sums of money, but it is only at the beginning, and I ask your co-operation in working out that problem.

Our prisons and our reformatories also need help. They need the intelligence that comes from people who help work for the public good. And I ask your co-operation in that endeavor.

But the fundamental problem that we have in this country—and we can well study that problem as worked out in your country—is scientific agriculture. I know of no country in the world where the soil is so well cared for, and where the product of the soil is so well produced as in Holland. Land you must conserve, because it is limited. But because of the very fact that you are limited, you intensify the productivity. We have become a wasteful nation here, thinking we have unlimited land. But I believe today we are suffering from our extravagance. I am endeavoring to work through the Department of Education in this State so that we may go back to the common school, also the high schools, for the purpose of educating young men in the art of agriculture, that scientifically they may treat the soils, and scientifically they may treat the fruit trees, and scientifically they may harvest and dispose of the products of the soil, that the producer may obtain more for his labor and that the consumer may pay less than he does today for that product. That is another one of the problems on which I ask your co-operation.

And

And in closing I want to pay a tribute to the love of liberty that the Dutch people have, and have inspired in the people of this country, that love of liberty which gives to every individual the right to perform and to direct the affairs of this nation and of this State honestly. (Applause.)

THE TOASTMASTER: You see, Gentlemen, what it is to have a Dutch Governor of New York (applause), a man who with modesty outlines a conservative and useful not flamboyant administration of public affairs.

Our next toast is the British Empire, and its King. (Applause.)

(The toast was drunk standing, the orchestra playing "God Save the King.")

I now have the pleasure of introducing the Consul-General of the British Empire at New York, Consul-General Bennett. (Applause.)

ADDRESS OF HON. COURTENAY WALTER BENNETT, BRITISH CONSUL-GENERAL

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen: I am very pleased indeed to be here tonight to meet for the first time in my life the members of The Holland Society, and to recognize the great work which they are doing in the City of New York. I am also glad to be here for another reason, as it would appear to me that a representative of the British Empire at this banquet is a connecting link between the New Amsterdam of the Dutch and the New York of the Americans. When the gallant old Dutch pioneers came over to New York they ousted—I believe I am correct in saying so—they ousted the men, or part of the men of the Five Nations, and took their place. They reared a prosperous colony here. And in the course of time another nation came along, the British, and ousted the Dutch. They carried the work on a little bit farther, and then yet a third nation came along and ousted the British. (Laughter.) Gentlemen, there was nothing very courteous or very polite, or pleasant, in those several oustings. I doubt not that the men of the Five Nations were not particularly ularly pleased to have to pack their trunks and go elsewhere. Perhaps I interpret the feelings of the gentlemen in this room correctly when I say that the Dutch were not particularly anxious to move away from New York, and I believe I am right in saying that neither did we, the British, wish to move away particularly. (Laughter.) But the situation became a little bit warm, and change of climate, rather than of nationality, was thought advisable. (Laughter.) And the Americans are here, so far as I can make out, to stay. (Laughter.) I do not know that there is any nation on the face of the earth that particularly wishes to take New York. (Laughter.) If there is such a nation, all I can say is that I should be extremely sorry for them if they tried to do it. (Laughter and applause.) But out of these old strenuous days, perhaps a great deal of good has come. When we look back in the fuller light of history at all that has passed here, I think we may conclude that everything was done in an allwise providence, and for a world-wide good. Not only did it create on this continent the beginnings of a great power, but it also created an English-speaking America, and I think an English-speaking America is a very great asset. It did perhaps more than that, for I think it would not be too much to say that the result of those old strenuous days when courtesy was not so rife as it is now, was in a very special sense, the creation of the present British Empire. Our government wanted a lesson as to what to do with colonies. The lines which we were going upon were not correct; we had not yet realized that colonies are a solemn trust, that they are not given to the old land to make money out of, they are not purely a commercial asset; but they are rather trusts which are given to us, and which have to be dealt with on peculiar lines, which means not the creating of colonies which will necessarily pay, but the raising up and the bettering of those colonies, and the gradual raising of them to the estate of nations.

Here in the United States you have exactly the same colonial problem, and it is very interesting to watch how your procedure agrees with ours, and where it differs fers from it. But in both cases the interests and the objects are the same. It is your object to people the waste places of the earth, to raise up the people in them, to make men of them, and eventually to make nations of them, and that I hope will always continue to be the object both of Great Britain and of the United States. In this way we find that the interests of the Empire of Great Britain and the interests of the United States are actively and entirely identical. We are working for the same object, we are trying to effect the same ends, and I think it must be a very great pleasure to everybody in this room to know that through the splendid efforts and the wonderful success of Mr. Bryce, every one of the outstanding questions between the United States and Great Britain has now been settled (applause), either by direct negotiation or else by arbitration.

Gentlemen, the slate between the two countries is now clean, and it is clean for the first time for over one hundred and fifty years. (Applause.) But, gentlemen, this success on the part of Mr. Bryce could not have been effected unless the distinguished men who rule over the destinies of the United States, had been really in earnest in having all these outstanding matters closed. And I will go even further than that and say that even with the best of good will on the part of Mr. Bryce, with the best of good will on the part of the President of the United States, and on the part of the American Cabinet, it would have been impossible to get this clean slate unless there had been a great force of public opinion on both sides of the Atlantic which had made up their minds that there should be no more trouble between the United States and Great Britain. (Applause.)

Gentlemen, the relations of the British Empire to the whole world are peaceful and cordial, but with the United States they stand in a somewhat different position: Here we have between the two nations identity of language. Language is given to men to convey their thoughts. It must have been of foreign languages that the French cynic spoke when he said that tongues were given

given to men to conceal their thoughts. And I feel perfectly certain that the relations between the two countries now are on so friendly a footing that the two nations so thoroughly understand one another, that there can be in the future no possibility of any difficulty arising which cannot be settled by direct communication, or by means of arbitration. (Applause.)

THE TOASTMASTER: Our City and its Mayor. (Applause.)

(The toast was drunk standing.)

Mayor Gaynor writes me that he profoundly regrets that he will not be able to speak tonight with sufficient distinctness to make his voice audible at any distance from this table, and although he fully had intended to come, he asks us to excuse him.

The Mayor's absence has led to a discovery that we otherwise would not have made. It is astonishing how popular we Dutch are. Now here is the President of the Borough of Manhattan (applause), the official representative of the greatest of the boroughs of this City. (Applause.) I had always supposed that a McAneny was a descendant of the Irish kings (laughter), but I learn from this bearer of that distinguished name that he is a Dutchman. (Laughter and applause.) He tells me that notwithstanding his patronymic has an Irish sound, he really is three-fourths Dutch, and assures me that that is not a tribute to The Holland Society, but an actual fact. (Laughter.) Let me then introduce this illustrious Irishman of Dutch descent, Mr. McAneny. (Laughter and applause.)

ADDRESS OF HON. GEORGE McANENY

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen: I am grieved to be obliged to open with a protest against the disclosure of these across-the-table confidences. I am grieved, too, that mere modesty requires me to admit that the President has his fractions wrong. (Laughter.) I didn't claim three-quarters, I said one-eighth. (Laughter.) But if I have only one-eighth of Dutch blood, now that the issue has been raised, let me me claim as an advantage, upon the side, that I am at least a member—in very middling standing, to be sure, but nevertheless a member—of the Reformed Dutch Church of America (laughter and applause), a title and a position gained through more or less early good behavior in the County of Hudson, on the other side of the river. (Applause.) And I might add, very candidly and very emphatically, that I have always been led to resent the imputation that the Reformed Dutch Church of America was the only thing Dutch in America that had been reformed. (Laughter.) I could claim other things with all the vehemence of my one-eighth, but I will pass them by to my real place here this evening.

I am sorry indeed that the Mayor of the City of New York cannot be here to greet you, but you know that he is obliged to cut short his allowance of out-of-door engagements, but I do want, although you have been upon your feet before, in his name and in the name of the great City, to ask you to rise to a toast from the great City to the nation of our early days, to old Holland; to the dear little Queen whose days of infancy we remember, every one of us, with joy; to the Holland that has carried not only the charm of the best part of our civilization here, but to the Holland that even today is nourishing that hope of us all, the peace of all nations, in its own capital, and in a great house, and under a great promise that has been given her, and through her to all the earth, through a citizen of the United States. Gentlemen, to the old Netherlands from the New! (Applause.)

(The toast was drunk standing.)

I have observed with interest and a great deal of satisfaction from the point of view of a man who likes to see things put together in expert and scientific fashion, the working out of the program of this evening. You give us first the Dutch; you give us the English, who technically ousted the Dutch in 1664 (laughter), but actually did not oust them for one minute. (Applause.) They stayed right here, and happily stayed here, and I am bound to believe that as we read during

during the past several weeks of an assessment roll for the old Island of Manhattan that runs toward six thousand million of dollars, that there is many an aching heart here tonight, aching for the mistakes of his ancestors, the ancestors who let go far too soon. (Laughter and applause.) And then in this orderly procession which precedes me, I find the Governor of the State of New York, and you know the tributary situation of New York City following the occupation of the Dutch and of the English, brought it to the "occupation" of the State of New York, and that for a long period during the early times of our own freedom as a nation, the government of the City was administered from Albany. (Laughter.) I mean, gentlemen, strictly and technically administered from Albany; that the predecessors of Governor Dix had their room at the City Hall which is still known, and gloriously known, as the "Governor's room," and there they sat as Governors of the City with their appointive counsels at their side, up to the time of the Constitution of 1830, or thereabouts. And so, through this succession of our earlier Governors, you come finally to their legitimate successors. And I might say, in passing, that while the Mayor is not here, I find a private satisfaction in the fact that after all, when you come to a celebration of the things that were done by the Dutch before 1664, the Mayor here would have been an alien too. (Laughter.) Officially I am the lineal descendant of Van Twiller and of Kieft and of Stuyvesant. The Island of Manhattan has changed more or less since those days, but I challenge contradiction of my statement that in prototype of office I hold the succession, as President of this Borough. (Laughter and applause.)

Governor Dix has given us, not merely by his speech here this evening, but—through what counts so much more—by his action in the brief period of his occupancy of his office, an assurance that the City of New York is not to be governed any longer than it has to be, or more frequently or more seriously than it has to be, by the government at Albany. (Applause.) There is one thing, however, in his recent career to which I beg to take exception. It is a matter of consistency. He stated a few days ago, in fact, two or three weeks ago, and I think rightfully stated, that he would not interfere with any prerogative of the Legislature, upon a certain momentous occasion, and still I find him only three days ago declaring in the face of this notification, that the members of the Legislature must vote according to their consciences. (Laughter and applause.) But there are inconsistencies that we can forgive, even in the newly born (laughter), and to this one I, for one, am willing to subscribe.
to

Coming back by a sharp turn from Fort Orange to Fort Amsterdam, may I congratulate you gentlemen upon the survival here, as expressed tonight, of the fine idea for which your Society has been organized to stand? They say there are a thousand members of The Holland Society. I would not at first blush have dreamed that there were so many survivors of those days, but I am glad that the number is as great as that. I should not wonder if there are others, cousins and cousins German of those of that lineage, in this borough and outside, who would swell your thousand to thousands more. But as we go back to these days with justifiable and most pleasant pride, let us try to think of the picture that greeted the men of the Half Moon as they sailed into this harbor with its "sky-line"—fine commercially as it is, beautiful in many ways—try to go back to that old sky-line, the Island of Manhattan, with its gently rising hills, its beautiful greens, the Palisades above, the Brooklyn Heights, and the wonderful harbor that they traversed. I do not regret that we are all here, or that New York has become what it has become, but sometimes I do wish that we might revive that old picture. It cannot be done, of course, except in our imaginations, but let us begin with that, and let us believe,—and I certainly believe, and I am sure you do, that the Dutch who came with Hudson found the most beautiful harbor in the world, that they found here an inspiration that must have had a great deal to do with the beginnings of the nation that has been raised here.

It

It was not all beauty, to be sure. If I may relate an incident of history, and if Governor Dix will pardon me for repeating an anecdote that he heard a few evenings ago, let me tell you that it is a matter of established record that when Hudson had feasted his eyes for a sufficient amount of time upon these beauties, he desired to land, that, having landed, he met the natives, and there began that parleying which ended in various results through the years to come, some pleasant, some most unpleasant. He brought ashore, among the other attractions with which he hoped to win the support of the then Indians of Manhattan, an amount of so-called fire-water, and there was a very pleasant evening spent, sometimes, in the upper sixties. (Laughter.) And, gentlemen, if you will believe me, it is true, it is authenticated historically, that in the Indian terminology, if we go back to the derivation of the name of this Island, Mannahattas, it means, gentlemen—I blush to say it—the place of general intoxication. (Laughter.) I do not know whether it was the reputation thus early achieved for attractive quality, or whether for other reasons, but for some reasons certainly, following Hudson, following the earlier settlement, four years after, following all of the pleasant days of the Dutch Governors and the Dutch Company and their successors, there has been attracted to the Island of Manhattan a great assemblage of people from all the nations of the earth, from every state of the new Union that grew up, until we have become—I say it without blushes—I, for one, have passed that in this particular—we have reared here the greatest city of the earth. (Applause.)

Greatness in a city is not to be spelled or figured in the columns of the census. Often mere population and census emphasis spell anything but greatness. But if you examine those other material things, the commercial standing of New York, its progress in politics, in things social, in everything that goes to make for enlightenment and for advancement, and for the health and comfort of its people, I protest again that New York is the greatest city of the earth. (Applause.) And do not forget that we do not speak merely of our own five boroughs. A mere accident of geography separates us from the two counties across the river with their more than one million of people, by the last census. We are, in fact, if we consider the metropolitan district, a people of six millions. They are all coming in here, centered every day in my little Island of Manhattan, to do and to work out the things that make New York City great.

They are an empire in themselves, and this is the fruition, this is the final—not the final—but the present promise of the final stage of the old Dutch village, that nestled under the guns of old Fort Amsterdam down there at the end of Manhattan. (Applause.)

Gentlemen, we can well afford to go back across this history with great pride, with great satisfaction, with new inspiration. We can well assume that the City or the State or the people who have done these things, and who have made this wonderful place, have in them the capacity to do things still greater, much greater. Why, the City of New York in one sense is almost in its beginnings. You cannot stop the progress that is going on. If you wanted to, you could not stop it. And if you follow the scientific reports of the development of the past decade, and the decade before that, and look ahead a little way, the imagination is almost staggered by the vision of the great community of people to be.

Let us then keep in our minds as we survey in imagination that picture, the fact, that our present responsibility—I mean more properly our responsibility in the present—is to see that the way is properly laid for these people of the future. And who are they to be but your children, and mine, those for whom for every reason, whether they be of family, or of country, whether of the heart or of patriotism, we must provide. Let us consider that the government of our City and the government of the State that stands behind it as its great support and background shall be made as efficient, as honest and as pure as the thoughts and the votes of men can make them. (Applause.) Let us realize that our problems are not merely those that are threshed out in a few weeks before an election, not those that are intrusted to our civic and other societies for debate, that they are problems that lie right next to every one of us all day long and all the time, whether they be that basic thing with which we are now wrestling at the City Hall, the laying out and the carrying to completion of the lines of transit that are to make the physical city of the future, the making the city's plan in the matter of streets, of boulevards, of parks, of suburbs; the distribution of the population, the relief of unnecessary congestion, or the handling of the more intimate problems of the daily life of the people,—for all of which we need not merely statutory law, but men as administrators who will sense these things, and do what is right. The measure of our duty is equally plain. Count up, gentlemen, these things, among our present problems, and let us resolve that we shall not forget the traditions of the past, that we shall not forget either the thrift or the honesty, or the perseverance or the courage of the Dutch who began here, of the English who succeeded and lived with them, or of the American race that found its beginnings here and here produced its best results. Let us remember those things, gentlemen, and we shall continue to be proud, not merely of our old Dutch lineage, not merely of the new race that has sprung up, in the "melting-pot" here, born of all the nations of the earth, but proud of our own New York, which means and spells them all, proud (if I may revert again to a colloquialism of our own "Little Old Manhattan." (Applause.)

THE TOASTMASTER: The Holland of today. Fill your glasses to the Holland of today.

(The toast was drunk standing.)

This 26th anniversary of the Society will count for much in its annals, for we shall remember that we had in the official successor of the colonial governors a descendant of the great Dijks, and in the official representative of the Borough of Manhattan a lineal descendant of the doughty Wouter Van Twiller, with an Irish name, (Laughter), that we had as well the official successor of the royal provincial governors in the Consul-General. And now to respond for the Holland of of today, since we have heard so much of the Holland of the past, I shall present to you one of the great masters of American fiction. It is a rare pleasure to present to a Dutch audience, the creator of one of the most lovable characters we know, the man who introduced us to Colonel Carter of Cartersville. (Great applause.)

ADDRESS OF MR. F. HOPKINSON SMITH.

Mr. Chairman, the Governor of the State, ladies in the gallery, gentlemen on the floor, and you Hollanders (Laughter):

I have listened to the speech of the distinguished understudy who represented the State of New York, or, rather, that portion of it called the City. (Laughter.) He seemed ashamed of his one-eighth of Holland blood.

MR. MCANENY: No!!

MR. SMITH: I will not be interrupted. (Laughter.) I want you to distinctly understand that I, a Virginian, claim ninety-nine per cent of Holland blood. (Laughter.) Of course, it did not come to me direct. It came by marriage, but I have a son who can claim fifty per cent, and that is true. (Laughter.)

Now, gentlemen, the Holland dinner is one of those over-joyous, soul-inviting functions which revolves with the regularity of the planets. Some customs may go out of fashion, others be permanently buried and forgotten,—not so the annual gathering of the Dutch. They would be as loth to bury this function as Colonel Singleton's fellow citizens were loth to bury that military gentleman. An old friend of his, who had not seen him for some years, went down to his native town and met an old darkey sitting on the fence. He said: "Mose, you live here?" "Yas, sah, I live here." "Remember me?" "No, sah; Ah don't recommember you."

(Colonel Singleton was the best judge of Bourbon whiskey in that part of the State.)

"How are all our old friends around here?" "Well, sah, most ob dem am dead." "What became of Major Douglass?"

Douglass?" "He am dead, sah." "Major Douglass dead?" "Yes, sah; done buried him fo' years ago." "Well, what has become of Captain Tom Simpson?" "Dead." "Well! well!" "Yas, sah; buried him fo' months ago." "Well, what become of my old friend Colonel Singleton? Did you bury him, too?" "Kunnel Singleton? No, sah, we didn't bury the Kunnel; we just done poured him back in de barr'l." (Laughter.)

One other thing has struck me, and that is that, in your own and in most of the annual dinners which occur in New York, the sum of the talk has been about your ancestors,—what that particular breed did for you people. You glorify those graveyards that are on the hill. You speak of the great admirals and the great generals; you talk of that wonderful body of men who sacrificed their farms rather than have them polluted by a high-stepping Spanish heel. These are the sort of things you indulge in. Why, my dear men, have you any idea as to what Holland is today? I visited it first twenty-six years ago, and I spend several weeks there almost every year. I left Dordrecht, which to me is the concentration and the beauty spot of all that low section of the country, only in September last, and I assure you that of all the places I know on the earth, there is no one single spot where for me, an outdoor painter, I can get that quality, that beauty, that charm, which I can get in this, the home of many of your ancestors. (Applause.)

Take its art, for instance. You speak of Rembrandt, of Franz Hals, and of the schools their names stand for; wonderful in their time!—wonderful even today!—the marvelous technique of this marvelous Rembrandt, whose pictures look as if yellow glass had fused a light into and through the canvas! But let me for a moment come down to the school of today—the pictures of Mauve, Mesdag, Israels and Maris.

There hangs tonight in Cincinnati a picture, a large canvas (I think about five and one-half by four) painted by Mauve, that, if I know anything about my art, is unequalled by any single landscape in the world. Now that is a large statement. But when you begin to think think what makes a landscape,—that is, an outdoor picture,—and what it should represent, you will agree that in Charles Taft's house in Cincinnati there hangs a Mauve which comes as close to the "out-of-doors" as any canvas your eyes ever rested on; and yet, what is it? A straight horizontal line, a flock of sheep, a man in a blue shirt with a staff, his head cutting the sky-line, a dog in the foreground, some dust, and then a sky that goes into infinity! I have stood in front of that picture sometimes for an hour at a time, trying to get at the secret of the man's success. It is impossible. (Applause.)

Mesdag is over eighty-two now, and is still depicting the power of the sea,—its mighty rush of water, the passing of boats, the cold greys, the sky, the wet, the rime and the salt. This man puts his brush where it should lie and the canvas lives. And Israels is also eighty-two;—with his interiors, which you know and which the world knows. Master of diffused light, illumining perhaps a mother and child, the cradle, or an old fisherman, his touch as marvellous today as it was forty years ago!

So let us have the Holland of today, and then we will know what your people are doing for the civilization of the earth. (Applause.)

I know most of the highways of Europe;—I know the road from Paris; through the continent; up through Sweden; over to St. Petersburg; down to Odessa, Constantinople, and Venice,—and back to the Boulevards. I have traveled them a great many times. I know the small by-ways of Europe. I have a little "hole-in-the-wall" in Normandy; I have another in another part of France; I have a place outside of Paris. I love those places. And then I have Dort! When I first went to Holland I travelled its length and breadth. I wanted some place where I could get all there was in Holland condensed in one spot, and I found it in Dordrecht. One of your distinguished members was with me on one of my visits, and we looked over the town, and climbed over the dyke, and finally went home, and I have been there year after year. Dort, permeated with the quality of the picturesque, distinguished by lines of elm-bordered quays, fronting rich houses, dating back to 1612! Magnificent residences these! Four stories high, inhabited by men who have a fortune of over two millions of pounds sterling;—not poor in Dort, I want you to understand. Into that little place all the wealth of the East was poured, many years ago; and the Dutch, as you know, hold on to their money, and the fortunes then made still live. In front of these houses are the canals, bordered by trees and filled with boats, clean and white, slashed with emerald green, with beds of flowers on their decks; the wives taking the tiller and the children playing about, and let me tell you something of the people; their courtesy and their hospitality. In the Nieuw Haven in Dordrecht is an old potato boat. It was there when I first went to Holland twenty-six years ago. In it at that time lived a man and his wife. In the hold below were stored the potatoes they then sold and are still selling today. Last summer,—the old man is now nearly eighty years old and the dear old woman is about seventy-seven,—discovered me, painting on the quay, and, remembering, came running out. I must come and dine. The little cabin they lived in— it is nothing but a barge—is hardly as large as four times the width of this table at which I have sat. And the bill of fare? Only a dish of boiled potatoes, a cup of coffee, and a piece of bread, and then, because I was their honored guest, an old pot of jam was taken down from the top shelf and brought out for my enjoyment. So much for the hospitality of the people. (Applause.)

And the loyalty of the nation! When their little Queen was about to be crowned, there was not a fisherman, there was not a man on the street, there was not a store-keeper nor a child at school that did not put his or her contribution into the box. And for what? For a gold carriage in which the little lady should ride to church. And it was almost literally a gold carriage, for not only were its hubs and its tires and its spokes plated with gold, but the whole body was covered. Just as much money as they could spend on it, they spent. (Applause.) Open your mouth and say one word against the little Queen anywhere in any public part of Holland and what would happen? You would be in the canal or in jail before really you had finished your sentence. (Laughter and applause.) So much for the loyalty of the people.

Do you know what I mean by loyalty?—real loyalty?

Within a year, one rainy, cold night, when the fog settled, news went through London that the King was dying. All through the night the people who could afford the bulletins knew; but the people in the suburbs, the shop girl and the homeless, could not afford to buy, and they did not know. On that sad morning, near six o'clock, hardly light, a shop girl went blocks out of her way up to Buckingham Palace, put her little face between the iron railings, and looked up in the sky, waiting for the fog to clear, so she could see whether the flag was half-mast or full. Then, as she looked again, the fog lifted. It was half-mast, and she knew. She wore a ragged brown coat and a black straw hat with some gay red paper flowers on it. She stood for a moment gazing at the flag, took the hat from her head, crumpled the flowers in her hand, put them in her pocket, replaced the hat and went away, walking slowly, the tears streaming down her face. No higher tribute was ever paid a sovereign the world over than was paid King Edward by that shop girl! (Applause.) That is the sort of loyalty they also have in Holland. (Applause.)

And now does this teach us nothing? Have you men here before me—you who boast, and justly so, of the pluck, the courage, the morale of your ancestors,—no duty to perform here in this your new home? Is it not your bounden duty to stand here for the good things which inspired your men of old? Here in New York City today there is hardly a man in office that is not the subject of abuse. When he takes office, or even when he absents himself from it for a six weeks' vacation (applause), the same abuse is poured out,—and it is increasing. And as this influx comes in and this enormous tide of immigration settles among us.—Slavs, Mongolians, Malays, all the nations of the earth,—not forgetting ting that top scum from the scrap heaps of Italy,—when this is dumped in among us, you men, who know really what a republic means and what true liberty stands for,—only to you, and to the Scotch, English, Dutch and Swiss, can the republic look to preserve the traditions of our fathers. (Applause.) We have preserved it up to date. You gentlemen have done your part. The nation honors and reveres you, and so I say tonight, let us fill our glasses and send our greetings across the sea to the little mother, your Queen, the baby she loves, and the country she rules over. (Applause and cheers, and the toast is drunk standing.)

THE TOASTMASTER: We have learned that we own the State and the town. Also we have captured the Army and the Navy. It is a delight to have all branches of the government represented by Dutchmen. We have had the executive, we have had rumors of the legislative (laughter), and now we have the Army and the Navy, and I present a Dutch sailor, Captain Van Duzer. (Applause.)

ADDRESS OF COMMANDER L. S. VAN DUZER

Mr. President, Mr. Governor, Ladies, Fellow Members and Guests:

I regret that my chief, Real-Admiral Leutz, is not here present, and that I must very inefficiently rise to take his place. After listening to the distinguished gentlemen who have spoken before me, I still further regret in your behalf that he is not here now. I feel sure that he would better represent the two militant branches of the government.

Before proceeding to say a word for the Army and Navy, I might speak a little of what I have heard in the various speeches here, as a result of my study of history. It has been mentioned here that the Indians were ousted by the Dutch, and the Dutch were ousted by the English, and the English were ousted by the Americans, but when I was a small boy I was taught, I don't know by whom—I presume by some person who was slightly sarcastic—that New York was governed by the Irish. I have, however, learned much to my pleasure and delight, that we have got one-eighth of it back. (Laughter.) And I hope that the Dutch will get it all back. (Laughter.)

I am sorry that there is no member of the other branch of the service present, but I will try to present our own service somewhat before you, and it is with great pleasure that I arise in a case like this before the Holland Society, the first time that I have ever had the pleasure of being at a banquet here. Holland more than any other country in the world, is an example of what a small country can do in the way of creating a navy. With a little bit of territory, she created a navy that at one time was paramount. You all remember the story of Van Tromp, who went up the Medway with a broom at his masthead, and announced that he was sweeping everything clean, and nobody could deny it. The British have, for six or seven hundred years at least, been dominant upon the sea with one interlude. That little interlude was made by Holland. The few times when other countries for a moment held supremacy, were mere incidents, and it shows how very strong those people were at sea. They had to be. Their country was such that they either had to go to sea, swim, or build dykes, and I presume they preferred the sea after they got on a ship.

The Navy of the United States, I trust, will always have your full support. It is an interesting fact that until quite recently no navy has ever been anything but loyal to its government, and it is a great grief to the navy of the United States, and to all naval men, to find that in some of the South American countries the traditions of the navies of the world have been violated by those people there, and I cannot believe that they are in any way representatives of any navy (applause), because I am sure that our navy under all circumstances and at all times, is loyal in every word, every thought, and every action. (Applause.) I believe that all of you realize that if at any time we have trouble with any of the rest of the world, which I trust we will not, that the burden of that fight will rest upon the navy, and I hope that the navy will be able at all times to return the trust which you will place in it. (Applause.)

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: This speech will conclude our Twenty-sixth Annual Dinner.

THE TWENTY-SIXTH ANNUAL MEETING

THE Twenty-sixth Annual Meeting of The Holland Society of New York was held in the Hotel Astor, Broadway and Forty-fourth Street, New York City, on Thursday, April 6, 1911. The Annual Meetings are always held on this date in commemoration of the VERBOND DER EDELEN — Confederation of the Nobles—when in 1566, A. D., the Dutch combined against tyranny and adopted the badge which is now the badge of our Society.¹ President Clearwater called the meeting to order with a few remarks concerning the pleasure he had experienced while representing the Society as its executive head, and commenting upon the satisfaction with which the labors of the Nominating Committee had been generally received. After the applause which greeted his remarks had subsided, the minutes of the last Annual Meeting were read by the Secretary.

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: Gentlemen, you have heard the minutes read. It is moved and seconded that they be adopted as read. Those in favor of that resolution will signify by saying aye.

The motion was unanimously carried.

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: Report of the Treasurer, Mr. Van Brunt.

TREASURER VAN BRUNT: My report has been put before you all in the printed notice of the meeting, and

I have nothing to add to that printed report (which follows).

ARTHUR H. VAN BRUNT,

Treasurer.

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: It is moved and seconded that the Report of the Treasurer shall be received and approved. Those in favor of the motion will signify by saying aye; opposed, no. (The motion was unanimously carried.)

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: Report of the Committee on Finance.

SECRETARY BOGERT: Mr. Van Norden requested that in the absence of the Committee I should present that report for him; I have his letter, which, if you will permit me, I will read.

To The Holland Society of New York:

The Committee on Finance reports that it has carefully examined the books and accounts of the Treasurer and the vouchers in support thereof, and has found them correct in all respects.

The Committee has also examined the securities in which the funds of the Society have been invested and have found them as stated in the Treasurer's Report.

April 6, 1911.

WARNER VAN NORDEN,

Chairman Committee.

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: You have heard the Report of the Committee on Finance; and it is moved and seconded that it be received and approved. You have also heard that the Chairman of that Committee is suffering from that constitutional difficulty which sooner or later affects all Dutchmen. Those in favor of receiving the Report will signify by saying aye; opposed, no. (The motion was unanimously carried.)

PRESIDENT

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: Report of the Secretary?

Henry L. Bogert, Secretary of the Society, then read his annual report as follows:

The Secretary has the honor to report to the Twenty-sixth Annual Meeting of the Holland Society of New York that its membership now hovers about the 1,000 mark, which had been set for some years as the goal of each administration. Our report shows a membership slightly in excess of this number, but the list of those carried off by death has been increasing, and although all of the candidates at the last meeting of the Trustees have qualified, except one, the list is perilously close to 1,000. The annual notices, which were issued a fortnight ago, bore with them the handbook which, now in its second edition, has been found so convenient for consultation and (the Secretary fondly hopes) may reconcile the members temporarily to the delay in issuing the Year Books. With reference to the Year Books, the Secretary must still regret that the completed volume is not in the hands of the members, as he had confidently hoped, but if the patience and long-suffering of the sons of New Netherland will still permit it, the Secretary has asked and hopes to obtain a further term for the current year in order that all the Year Books may be made good. As to these books, he also reports that although the earliest number in arrears is still unissued, the latest number has already received a certain fair proportion of labor, so that each issue may be worthy of its predecessor and may take its proper place in the series which has been made familiar in the past. Referring to the notices of the Annual Meeting, although a postal card was inserted with every effort to curtail the labors of the members in making their responses, there have been received but 475 replies out of the 1,000 or more invitations. If more than one-half of the members find it too great a task to fill blanks in the postal cards in order to make the labors of their Committees and officers somewhat lighter, we should not expect them to take enough interest to glance over the publications of the Society and incur incur the labor of criticising what may be done in their name. Since the last annual meeting the Secretary has prepared and issued to all members of the Society a four-page leaflet containing the officers of the Society, the Committees as appointed or continued by the President, and a Calendar showing the principal events of the current Society year. The next matter of importance is the issuance of notices to the Smoker, which takes place on the Tuesday before Thanksgiving Day. Then follows the notice for the anniversary banquet on the third Thursday in January, then the distribution of souvenirs to absentees, and, finally, the notices for the annual meeting, which terminates the year. The preparation of the handbook begins early in the year and it is expected that it may be issued in the month of February hereafter, the first two years being delayed by the novelty of the plan. The Smoker was even more successful than usual, and the new place of assembling was well adapted to the entertainment. The Anniversary Dinner was signalized by the presence of the Governor, who took occasion to invite his hearers to assist him in the arduous task of governing this great state. The souvenir was exceptionally attractive and artistic and its successors will be entrusted to a special committee, who will endeavor to make a series of these tokens with historical value as well as artistic form, worthy of preservation.

In addition to the deaths noted in the report, there has been lately posted the decease of Francis C. Van Horn, of Newport. Among those whom we have lost this year, the name of Theodore Melvin Banta will stand out as one to whom this Society has owed much and whose memory will ever be cherished. The present Secretary appreciates perhaps more keenly than others the extent of the labors which Mr. Banta so excellently performed, and no occasion should pass without its proper recognition, at least where his successor traces the path so ably marked out. The names of Edward Elsworth, of Poughkeepsie, and James Wallace Van Cleave, of St. Louis, recall notable gaps in our list of prominent members, and hosts of sorrowing friends and grateful fellow citizens keep these memories ever green.

The Trustees have recommended the election of a Corresponding Secretary and the retention of recording duties in the present office. The division of these duties will enable everything to be done more systematically and expeditiously.

Respectfully submitted,

H. L. BOGERT, Secretary.

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: You have heard the Report of the Secretary. It is moved that it be received and adopted with applause. Those in favor of the motion will signify by saying aye; opposed, no. (Unanimously carried.)

SECRETARY BOGERT: Mr. Chairman, I would like to offer a motion that the amendment to the Constitution referring to the creation of the office of Corresponding Secretary be taken out of its order so that the report of the Committee on Nominations, embracing a nomination for that office, may be properly proposed in its course; and I move that the report of the Trustees providing an amendment to Article IV of the Constitution, Section 1, providing for a Corresponding Secretary, be now put before the meeting, and I move the amendment.

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: It is moved and seconded that the order of business be suspended and that the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the Society providing for the election of a Corresponding Secretary be now put. Those in favor of the motion will signify by saying aye, opposed no. (Carried.)

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: It is now moved that the Constitution of the Society be amended so as to read as follows:

"Section 1. A President, Vice-Presidents as provided in the By-Laws, a RECORDING Secretary, a CORRESPONDING Secretary and a Treasurer shall be chosen at each annual meeting and shall hold office for one year and until their successors are elected." and so that the second paragraph shall read as follows:

"If

"If one who is not a Trustee should be elected President, RECORDING Secretary or Treasurer, he shall be ex-officio a member of the Board of Trustees during his term of office."

As many as are in favor of this amendment to the Constitution will say aye; opposed no. (Unanimously carried.)

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: It is further moved that Section 2 of Article V of the Constitution shall be amended so as to read as follows:

"Section 2. The Recording Secretary shall make and keep a true record of all meetings of the Trustees and of the Society, and of all Standing Committees; he shall also act as Librarian and Curator and shall have the custody of the Constitution and By-Laws, the Corporate Seal, and all books, pamphlets, manuscripts and personal articles belonging to the Society.

"The Corresponding Secretary shall notify each Trustee of all meetings of the Trustees, and each member of all meetings of the Society; issue all other authorized notices to members, distribute all books, pamphlets, souvenirs and other matter authorized by the Trustees and conduct the correspondence of the Society."

You have heard the motion. As many as are in favor of so amending the Constitution will say aye; opposed, no. (Carried unanimously.)

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: It is further moved to amend Section 2 of Article VI of the Constitution; Section 2 of Article VII and Section 1 of Article VIII by inserting the word "Corresponding" before the word "Secretary."

You have heard the proposed amendment. As many as are in favor of it will say aye; opposed, no. (Unanimously carried.)

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: The Report of the Committee on Nominations—Judge Hasbrouck.

Judge Hasbrouck read the report of said Committee as follows:

President:

President:

Trustee—Class of 1913:

J. MAUS SCHERMERHORN

I wish to state further that since this report was prepared and handed to the Secretary; I, as Chairman of the Committee on Nominations, have received from the Secretary, Mr. Bogert, a letter calling my attention to the fact that Morris County, New Jersey, now has ten members residing within its borders and is therefore entitled to a vice-president under the By-laws. The report as made is submitted, and the suggestion is made that if the members from Morris County present desire a vice-president, they might move an amendment to to the report that a vice-president from Morris County be appointed and might name him. The Committee would be very glad to add a vice-president from Morris County, New Jersey.

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: It is moved and seconded that the report of the Committee be amended to include the name of Mr. Charles Edward Surdam as Vice President from Morris County. You have heard the motion; those in favor of it will signify by saying aye; opposed, no. (Carried unanimously.)

You have heard the report of the Committee on Nominations. It is moved and seconded that it be received and approved and the Committee discharged with the thanks of the Society. Those in favor of the motion will say aye; opposed, no. (Unanimously carried.)

It is moved and seconded that the Secretary cast one ballot for all the officers who have been nominated. Those in favor of the motion will signify by saying aye; opposed, no. (Unanimously carried.)

SECRETARY BOGERT: The ballot is cast, electing the entire list of officers as proposed by Nominating Committee.

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: The next order of business is the transferring of the very beautiful badge with which the President is decorated.

MR. CHARLES E. LYDECKER: May I interrupt you a moment. In view of the absence of the distinguished gentleman who has just been elected as President of the Society for the ensuing year, he being in Cuba recuperating his health, I move that it is the sense of this meeting that our distinguished President, the retiring officer, continue to serve this evening and continue to bear the badge of office which so handsomely adorns him. (Applause.)

SECRETARY BOGERT: The modesty of the Chairman will not permit him to put that motion. If in favor of the motion, please signify in the usual manner. (The motion was carried with applause.)
of

MR. DE WITT ROOSA: I would like to offer the following resolution:

The Holland Society of New York, having passed a year of steady and gratifying progress, following the first quarter century of its existence, and numbering a thousand good and true citizens of New Netherland stock, desires to place upon record its appreciation of the dignity and assiduity with which its presiding officer has maintained the old traditions and has taken his hundred mile journey to perform his chosen task. As he leaves the presidential chair and places in the custody of his successor the badge of office, the regard of his fellow members and their good wishes for his continued health and prosperity move them to present to the Hon. Alphonso Trumbour Clearwater this memento of the occasion and to order that it be inscribed upon the minutes of this meeting and duly engrossed for presentation to him.

SECRETARY BOGERT: I think, Mr. Chairman, I should put that motion also. If in favor of that resolution, please express yourselves in the usual manner. It appears to be carried unanimously, Mr. Chairman. (Great applause.)

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: I am very grateful to you for your very generous recognition of such trifling services as I have been able to render during my term of office. Joining The Holland Society at its organization, corresponding with Judge Aaron J. Vander-Poel, with whom the idea of the organization of the Society largely originated, and associating with its members from the time of its organization until today, I have, as you know, taken the deepest interest in its success. It is extremely gratifying to me to receive this testimonial of your approval. It has been extremely gratifying to me to have the President of the United States and the Governor of the State of New York and the Mayor of the City of New York say to me during my incumbency of the office of President of the Society that

that they regarded The Holland Society as one of the greatest and most important societies in America. (Applause.) Of the many societies we have in the United States there are few which cultivate higher ideals than ours. Our Society is a great National Society. We are very apt, as we think of it, to think of it simply as a local society of Manhattan Island, of New Jersey, and of the Hudson and Mohawk Valleys. That is an inaccurate view. It is recognized here and in England, in France and in Holland as a national society, and it has always upheld the best traditions of the Dutch ancestors of its members. While I resign the Presidency into abler and certainly into more charming hands, turning over this gavel and this badge to Mr. Hoffman, I shall always treasure your appreciation of what little I may have done, and shall continue to labor in the ranks for the benefit and the success of this great organization. (Applause.)

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: Report of the Committee on statue to William the Silent.

SECRETARY BOGERT: There is a report of progress by Mr. Van Brunt, Chairman of the Committee.

MR. LYDECKER: So many years have passed during which the inability of the Committee in charge of this matter has been shown to do anything more than report progress without making some progress, that it seems to me that it has become almost disgraceful that something so dear to the heart of every Dutchman, that the character of that man should not be respected and honored and as it was intended to be, that I think now is the time to take some action either to stop the movement or to bring it to success; and I move that a committee of five be appointed to consider and report, after conference with the Committee in charge of this object, upon the expediency of continuing the attempt, and, if they deem it expedient, to agree upon some plan by which it may be carried to a successful conclusion. While, certainly, the efforts of the Committee in sending out circulars asking for subscriptions have failed, it is evident that Dutchmen are to be approached in some other way, and, if there is no other way, why, we can get up a raffle as our ancestors did a hundred years ago, and all Dutchmen will immediately come in and give up their shekels and copeks, and thus bring this matter in some way to a successful accomplishment. I make that motion in order that something may be done.

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: You have heard the motion—

MR. VAN RIPER: Before that motion is put, if I may be permitted a moment, I would like to say this: It seems to me that in New York there are scores of people who, by reason of their lineage, are doubly interested in anything which will commemorate the history of William the Silent; and I have had it in my mind for some time to offer a resolution here that the Committee in charge of that work, or, if Mr. Lydecker pleases, this committee which he now proposes, shall take into consideration with the Standing Committee the advisability of seeking subscriptions to this cause from people outside of the membership of this Society. It seems to me that the amount of money we want to raise for this purpose, $50,000, could be raised in New York City without very much loss of time if the subscriptions were sought outside of the membership of this organization; and I offer that amendment to Mr. Lydecker's resolution.

MR. LYDECKER: I accept the amendment.

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: Are there any further remarks? You have heard the motion as amended. Those in favor of the motion will signify by saying aye; opposed, no. Carried.

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: The Chair will hand over the appointment of this Committee to the newly elected President, Mr. Hoffman.

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: Report of the Committee on the Hudson Ter-Centennial Celebration.

SECRETARY BOGERT: Mr. Bergen being absent, I may report for him that the work of that Committee has been entirely completed and a report submitted to the Trustees; and I therefore move that, the Committee having completed its labors, it may now be discharged with the thanks of the Society.
to

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: It has been moved and seconded that the Committee upon the Hudson Ter-Centennial Celebration be received, adopted and approved, and that the Committee be discharged with the thanks of the Society. Those in favor of the motion will signify by saying aye; opposed, no. Carried.

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: Report of the Committee on the Vander Capellen tablet.

SECRETARY BOGERT: On behalf of the Committee, which you may remember was ably managed by our late President, Mr. Van Wormer, I may say that the labors of that Committee have also come to an end by the inscription on a tablet on the church at Gorssel, showing the names of Baron Vander Capellen and his wife. The expenses have been met by the Society for the Study of Jurisprudence and History in Over Yssel, and the financial end of it has been presented to the remainder of the Committee by a letter from Mr. Vander Port, who was the representative of that Society. The amount is approximately $52.00; and therefore, Mr. Chairman, in offering this report I recommend that the sum of $52.00 be appropriated to reimburse the Society and its representative for their outlay in inscribing the names upon the family tablet in the church at Gorssel and the incidental expenses connected therewith, and that this resolution be the warrant of the Treasurer for making such payment.

MR. VAN BRUNT: I would say in respect to that motion that my recollection is, although I haven't the balance here with me, that there is a balance sufficient to defray that amount in the original subscription. I think I still have a small balance on hand of the original subscription, and consequently I do not think it will be necessary to go to the Society at all to make good that balance of $52.00.

MR. HASBROUCK: I move that the matter be referred to the Trustees with power to take it up at a later meeting.

PRESIDENT

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: You have heard the motion of Mr. Hasbrouck. Those in favor of the motion will signify by saying aye; opposed, no. Carried.

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: The next order of business is the proposed amendment to Article III, Section 2 of the Constitution. The proposed amendment is as follows: "So long as there are one thousand members of the Society no further elections to membership shall be held, but candidates for admission shall be placed in order upon a waiting list."

It is moved that the amendment to the Constitution be adopted.

SECRETARY BOGERT: Mr. Chairman, before this vote is taken, I would like to make a suggestion. In the St. Nicholas Society they have a limit of membership, but they have also provided that this limit shall not prevail when there is a candidate who is the son or descendant of a present or former member of the Society; and it is quite possible that this qualification of the amendment may please the members of The Holland Society. On behalf of the Trustees I have merely proposed the amendment, as you see it on the notice, but it has occurred to me that there is some virtue in the proposed change as we hear it from the other society, and I should like to have the matter submitted to this meeting for that purpose.

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: It is moved that the proposed amendment be modified so as to provide that it shall not apply to the descendant of any member of the Society—that will be a descendant in any degree. You have now heard the proposed amendment with its modification as suggested by the Secretary. Are you ready for the question? Is there any debate? If not, those in favor of the proposed amendment with the suggested modification will signify by saying aye; opposed, no. It seems to be carried. It is carried.

Is there any further business before the Society?

MR. HOES: Mr. President, I would like to ask a question of the Secretary; some of the members want me to ask this question; they do not quite understand whether whether the Secretary has a hope and expectation of getting out the missing Year Books¹ during the current year.

SECRETARY BOGERT: Mr. Chairman, it would never do for a Dutchman to be without hope, and the Secretary is filled to overflowing with the hope that the Year Books may all be gotten out this year, and, with that in view, he has humbly submitted his application to be continued on the job as Recording Secretary to the end that he may make good on that proposition and get out those Year Books in full. (Applause.)

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: Well, of all the gratifying intelligence we have had at this meeting, I think the most gratifying is that the Year Book is not purely a mythological subject. I had begun to regard the Year Book as a myth, but now we have not only the hope, but the promise of it.

Is there any further business before the meeting? If there be no further business, it is moved and seconded that we adjourn. Those in favor of that motion will signify by saying aye; opposed, no. Carried.

ABRAM VAN ARSDALE

ABRAM VAN ARSDALE, a retired merchant, died suddenly April 7, 1910, at Newark, N. J., aged 78 years. He had made all arrangements preparatory to leaving the city to live with his younger son in East Cleveland, Ohio, but suffered a stroke of apoplexy from which he never rallied. Mr. Van Arsdale was born in Peapock, N. J., and lived there with his parents, William Van Arsdale and Euphemia Wolf, until early manhood, when he went to New Brunswick to engage in business. The last fifty years of his life were spent in Newark, where his genial disposition and upright life won him many friends. He had been an elder in the church for a number of years, was a director in the Children's Aid Society, and was associated with other local charitable work. At the time of his death he was President of the Masonic Veteran Association of Newark. He was elected a member of The Holland Society March 24, 1910, and on April 6th notified the Secretary of his intention to reside in Cleveland. Notice of his death appeared in the metropolitan papers the next day. In 1866 he married, in Newark, Anna V. Dawes, who died about six years ago. He is survived by two sons, George D., of Newark, and Frank D., of East Cleveland, Ohio.

DANIEL

DANIEL LEWIS VAN ANTWERP

DANIEL LEWIS VAN ANTWERP died April 16, 1910, at his home in Loudonville, N. Y., after an illness of about five months, leaving two daughters, Miss Clara A. Van Antwerp and Mrs. Andrew B. Nichols, and two sons, William H. and Elmer H. Mr. Van Antwerp was born October 6, 1826, in Loudonville, and was the youngest of three brothers, all of whom exceeded the three-score mark in business. His first office was at 72 State Street, but later at 16 James Street, with book-binding establishment on the opposite side of the street and finally at 86 State Street. At the time of his death and for many years previous he was a Trustee of the National Savings Bank. He attended the Emmanuel Baptist Church and was a member of The Holland Society since October 27, 1887. Mr. Van Antwerp was of a retiring disposition, conservative in business and had a kindly attitude which won him many friends.

ANDREW JACKSON KIERSTED

ANDREW JACKSON KIERSTED, a member of this Society since March 11, 1897, was born December 25, 1832, at Plantation "Beechland," Matthews County, Virginia. He entered the naval service of the United States as a third assistant engineer on June 26, 1856, and was promoted to first assistant engineer on August 2, 1859, and to chief engineer on November 12, 1861. During the Civil War he served on board the United States steamships Mohican and Tuscorora, afterwards on board various vessels and stations of the navy. He was fleet engineer of the South Pacific, serving on the United States steamship Trenton at the time of the hurricane at Apia, Samoa. On December 25, 1894, he was transferred to the retired list upon attaining the statutory retirement age of sixty-two years, as a chief engineer with rank of captain. During the Spanish-American War he was on duty, with the Naval Auxiliary Force, this being the last active duty performed by him. In accordance with the provisions of an Act of Congress approved June 29, 1906, he was, in recognition recognition of his Civil War service, advanced on the retired list to be a chief engineer with the rank of rear-admiral from that date. He married January 25, 1866, Isabella Stuart Henderson, daughter of John Luke Henderson of Baltimore, Md., and had two sons, John Luke and Henry Stevens, all of whom survived him when he died May 10, 1910, at his home, 1728 North Park Avenue, Philadelphia, Penn.

WILLIAM HENRY SLINGERLAND

WILLIAM HENRY SLINGERLAND died at his home in Slingerlands, N. Y., May 13, 1910. Had he lived until November, he would have been 90 years old. He was a civil engineer and surveyor. Among his notable works was the surveying of the Albany & Susquehanna Railroad from Albany to Cobleskill at a saving of $600,000 to the company over a former survey, his service being recognized by the naming of the village after him. He was colonel of the One Hundred and Fiftieth Regiment nine years, division judge-advocate in 1848, enrollment officer of Albany County later, United States Loan Commissioner in 1856, and member of Assembly in 1880. Mr. Slingerland was twice married; first to Elizabeth Wayne, who died in 1867, and second to Miss Maria Whitbeck, who with the following children survive him: John H., George W., William H., and Mrs. William H. Coughtry. He was a graduate of the Albany Academy and a member of The Holland Society since March 31, 1892.

JAMES WALLACE VAN CLEAVE

JAMES WALLACE VAN CLEAVE, a member of our Society since December 8, 1904, was born July 15, 1849, in Marion County, Kentucky, and was a descendant of Jan Van Cleaf, who came to this country prior to 1650. He spent the first eighteen years of his life on the paternal estate. During the Civil War he fought on the side of the South and his father was killed. At the close of hostilities, the resulting alteration in circumstances forced the family to Louisville, where he completed his education and entered the employ of L. S. Lithgow

Lithgow & Co., stove founders, with whom he remained seven years. He then removed to St. Louis, where he became connected with the Excelsior Manufacturing Company as travelling representative. In 1880 Mr. Van Cleave returned to Louisville to become the Secretary of the Lithgow Manufacturing Company, successors to the firm with which he first engaged. Subsequently, in connection with this work, he organized the James W. Van Cleave Company, which became one of the largest stove concerns in the South. Eight years later he accepted the managership of the Bucks Stove & Range Company of St. Louis, and had been with them in the various capacities of general manager, secretary-treasurer, vice-president and president. The concern meanwhile grew from a small nucleus to one of the largest of its kind in the country. Mr. Van Cleave became first vice-president of the Citizens' Industrial Association of America and president of the St. Louis association. Of the latter he was for the third time elected to the presidential chair. He was also president of the National Association of Manufacturers, refusing the re-election for a third time, partly on account of ill health. Two years ago the Manufacturers' Association, with the co-operation of Mr. Van Cleave, organized the National Council for Industrial Defense, its object being to watch legislation affecting manufacturing interests. He was not only a very able, energetic and intelligent man in his own business and in the performance of civic duty, but was exceptionally broad-minded, just and conscientious. He will be remembered for his long fight with the trades unions on the principle of the boycott in connection with the Bucks Stove & Range Company, a contest in which he expended money and labor without limit. While contending for public and private rights in this matter, he was always in close sympathy with the workmen in their struggle. "The cause of equitable administration of public affairs, purified from the evil influence of personal or class interests, loses by his death an able and honorable supporter." He died May 15, 1910, at his boy's home in St. Louis, leaving a wife and family.

EDWARD

EDWARD BOYCE ADRIANCE

EDWARD BOYCE ADRIANCE died at his home, 462 West Twenty-third Street, New York, on July 22, 1910. He was born in that city sixty-four years ago and was the only surviving son of the late James B. Adriance. Mr. Adriance was not engaged in business. He was a member of the Union Club, the Maryland Club, and of The Holland Society, which he joined March 12, 1896.

JAMES TEN EYCK

JAMES TEN EYCK was born February 16, 1840, at 85 Columbia Street, Albany, N. Y., and for 65 years resided at 93 Columbia Street, where he died July 28, 1910. His ancestor, Coenraedt Ten Eyck, emigrated to New Amsterdam about 1650, was Lance-Corporal, 3rd Company, Burgher Corps of New Amsterdam, and in 1674 possessed a fortune of $5,000. Abraham R. Ten Eyck, grandfather of James Ten Eyck, came to Albany about 1800, and his son Visscher was the father of Mr. Ten Eyck. He received his education in the Albany Academy, Burlington College, N. J., and Yale College, but was obliged to leave college on account of his health, and continued his studies under private tutorship. In 1857 he entered the employ of the New York Central Railroad as clerk, left the company to become a clerk with Bacon & Stickney, spices, and in March 1, 1865, was taken into the firm, becoming senior member in 1889. As a member of the Masonic fraternity Mr. Ten Eyck became prominent. He was initiated and made a Master Mason in Masters' Lodge No. 5, F. & A. M., of Albany, in 1864, passed through all the degrees of the order, holding various offices, and becoming an honorary member of every Masonic lodge in Albany. In his honor, James Ten Eyck Lodge No. 831 was named and his bust was erected in the facade of the Masonic Temple on Maiden Lane. In June, 1892, he was elected Grand Master of Masons of the State of New York. He had been the recipient of many honors from the craft and in turn had given of his time, talents and means to the upbuilding of its principles principles and work. Mr. Ten Eyck was connected with many important organizations of the city. He was a member of St. Peter's Church, president of the Albany Historical and Art Society, president of the Home Savings Bank, first vice-president of the New York State National Bank, director of the Union Trust Company, director of the Albany Insurance Company, and trustee of the Homeopathic Hospital and its first vice-president. December 20, 1886, he became a member of The Holland Society of New York. As a collector of coins, ceramics, antique silver, glass and jewelry, Mr. Ten Eyck had a national reputation. He recently gave the Albany Historical Society the Visscher Ten Eyck memorial collection in memory of his father. It was through his efforts to have a fire-proof hotel that the Albany Hotel Corporation was organized which built the Hotel Ten Eyck at State and Chapel Streets in his honor. In 1864 Mr. Ten Eyck married Catherine Elizabeth Van Vechten, who died eight months after, and he never remarried. He is survived by one sister, Miss Anna Ten Eyck, of New York and New London.

HIRAM SCHOONMAKER

HIRAM SCHOONMAKER of New York City died August 2, 1910, at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., leaving a widow and one daughter. Funeral services were held at the residence of Charles W. Elting, Highland, Ulster County, N. Y., on August 4, at 2:30 P. M., and interment was made in Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn. He became a member of The Holland Society, June 25, 1885, and was a descendant of Hendrick Jochensen Schoonmaker, a native of Hamburg, Germany, who came to this country in the military service of the Dutch East India Company, kept an inn at Albany prior to 1655, moved to Kingston in 1661, married Elsie Janse Van Breestede and died in 1681.

THEODORE MELVIN BANTA

THEODORE MELVIN BANTA was born November 23, 1834, on Catherine Street, in the City of New York. His parents were Albert Zabriskie Banta and Sarah Ann

Ann Sayre. He was educated in the public schools and was a member of the first class when the College of the City of New York opened, January, 1849, and completed a two-year course. He developed special proficiency in mathematics and became an accountant for several years. He was at one time with the firm of Russell & Norton, who sent the first ship from New York to Australia after the gold fever in 1851. In April, 1858, he took charge of the actuarial work of the New York Life Insurance Company, and in 1863 became its cashier, which position he held until 1908, with the exception of a short period after the change of administration arising from his charges against the management. His reinstatement was a tribute to his able justification of those charges. On February 17, 1862, he married Cornelia Crane, who survived him, together with two daughters, May and Effie, a third daughter having died in infancy. Mr. Banta made his home in Brooklyn, at 144 St. James Place, having his summer home at Glen Brook, Conn., where he died September 17, 1910. He had lived in Brooklyn for over thirty years, being one of the constituent members of the Marcy Avenue Baptist Church, founded in 1874, and was for twenty-six years the superintendent of the Sunday School, of which he was also the founder. The pastor found in him an earnest supporter of both church and Sunday School and made eloquent mention of the loss sustained by his death. He had also been President of the Board of Church Trustees and also President of the Baptist Social Union of Manhattan and Treasurer of the Baptist Social Union of Brooklyn. In politics he had considered himself an old-line Democrat and his views were emphatic and positive. He had maintained friendship with William J. Bryan and in January, 1904, was instrumental in procuring him as one of the speakers at the annual banquet of The Holland Society. Later in the year he opposed Alton B. Parker for the Presidency, denouncing his famous telegram on the gold question. He was appointed to the Municipal Civil Service Commission and served under Mayor Low in 1902 and 1903. He was a member of the Historical Societies of New York, Long Island,

Island, New Jersey, and Virginia, of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, the St. Nicholas Society, the Huguenot Society, the Society of Founders and Patriots of America, the Society of Colonial Wars, the Colonial Order of the Acorn, the Municipal Art Society and The Holland Society. He also belonged to the National Arts Club and the Arkwright Club. He was elected to The Holland Society June 15, 1886, when the Society was but three months old, and immediately took a keen interest in all its affairs, serving with particular distinction and effectiveness in the search for old church records, their reproduction and publication. In addition, he served upon its most important committees, his term of service upon the Committees on History and Tradition and on Genealogy being almost continuous. In May, 1891, he was elected Secretary and continued in that office with increasing assiduity and success until the annual meeting in April, 1903, when he was unanimously elected to the Presidency, which he filled for the following year. The Year Books of the Society, under his able and loving care, became easily the first of their class and established the position of the Society where its sister organizations were unable to approach, except at a distance. His careful, laborious and exacting work impressed a value upon these publications which still causes them to be made works of reference in genealogical and historical collections. In the course of his labors he yet found time to compile "A Frisian Family" (which was the Banta genealogy), published in 1893, and later The Sayre Family, published in 1901 (when, in addition to his other historical and literary connections, he had acquired also a membership in the Maatschappij der Nederlandsche Letterkunde te Leiden in the Netherlands), both of them made models of their kind and open to unusually few corrections arising from errors or oversight. At the annual meeting in 1904, when his administration as President had ended, Mr. Banta received congratulatory resolutions concerning his Secretaryship and his later office, which were engrossed and presented with the plaudits of his grateful grateful associates, who realized, as they have continued to realize in an even greater degree, how much and how valuable had been his service to The Holland Society and how great would have been its loss if he had not been commissioned to fill the offices in question. His personal acquaintance with the membership of the Society, his retentive memory for both names and faces, and his ever-ready hospitality, made him a continuing source of sociability and good fellowship at the meetings of the Society, where he was bent upon making every member a friend, or at least an acquaintance, of every other member, and frequently supplying that necessary companionship, which would have been lacking in so many cases where newly elected candidates made their first appearance among their fellows. At meetings he was always abreast of the progress of events and fertile in suggestions of its policies and projects. Since 1887 he had been continuously a member of the Board of Trustees and it is safe to say that no one has left greater imprint on the history of the Society than its second Secretary, Theodore Melvin Banta. Excellent portraits will be found in the two genealogies and in the Year Book of 1904, in which last the resolutions are also set out at length.

PRESIDENT CLEARWATER: I think we ought not to let the occasion go by without referring to the great debt of The Holland Society to its lately deceased Secretary and President, Theodore M. Banta. Mr. Banta became identified with the Society upon its organization, and it was always to him one of the most important of the many organizations in which he took so active and so useful a part. Equally lamentable is the vacancy caused by the death of Edward Ellsworth. Mr. Ellsworth was for many years a Trustee of the Society; he was an ardent Dutchman in spirit and in purpose, and his death leaves a vacancy which cannot be filled.
